Ambulance Makes Fast Run
to Get "Breathless" Victim

Witnessing a railroad catastrophe with maimed and dying victims about in the weekend, a driver for C. E. Curtis & Co., yesterday afternoon, went his ambulance building down W. Center street, going full blast.
Motors, wheels of the ambulance's approach drove slowly or drove up to the curb and stopped. Pedestrians crossing the intersection jumped into the street as the huge gray car flashed by.
As the ambulance drew up at Union Station the driver noticed a crowd of

This mode of meters is to be eliminated and the "circular reader" type substituted. While the reading of the several dials on the face is most complicated than in the case with the single dial meter, the mechanism has proven to be absolutely dependable, experience of the local water company has shown readings by water consumers can be made just as easily as with the single-dial type of meter once the system is thoroughly understood, company officials say.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventures

BY JUDD MONTIMER LEWIS

Me and Jubilee, pardner, the bucket and chased him. He saw us couldn't catch him so he jumped over the back of the house and was gone. Jubilee and I were both thinking we had a good chance of catching him. Only when a field was put in the way of the rope in the back of the house under the porch. Jubilee and I were both thinking we had a good chance of catching him. Only when a field was put in the way of the rope in the back of the house under the porch.

He lammed loose with the bucket and chased him.

pers and I said I had, so he told me to get one and see how I liked it. So I made out like I was cleaning one, and swallowed it whole, and he said, "Huh! They can't be so bad," and he took one and bit it in two. Then he looked at me and turned around and went in. I was lucky I didn't get choked.

I had to stay home all day and mind Annabelle Lee. I don't care.

Daily Bedtime Story

BY HOWARD GARIS

Uncle Wiggily and His Friends

"At, he! I smell something good!" said Uncle Wiggily one day when he was in the middle of his rabbit hole. "I smell something very good!"

"Is it pepper corns you smell, old man?" asked Holly.

"No, but almost as nice," answered the rabbit gentleman.

"Is it clover pie?" asked Tolly.

"No, but it is almost as nice," answered the rabbit gentleman. Then he ran to dig beneath a bush and soon pulled out some pieces of root. That's sassafras, my boys!" said Uncle Wiggily, taking a smell of the spicy root. "It's the best of the spicy root."

That's sassafras, my boys!" said Uncle Wiggily.

"What are you going to do with the things, Daddicums?" asked Holly. "I am going to make soda pop, or, come right call it, root beer," answered the bunny gentleman. "Or, as others might designate it—ginger ale."

"And may we have some soda pop?" asked Tolly.

"Indeed, you may," answered Mr. Longears, and when he had hopped up to his hollow stump hangar, he took up the roots and back in a kettle with sugar, water and yeast, and the soda pop into bottles which he tightly corked.

"What's the yeast for?" asked Jimmie, who, with Jangle, watched Uncle Wiggily corking the bottles.

"The yeast makes the soda pop rise and foam," was the answer. Nurse Jane helped Uncle Wiggily carry the corks of soda pop, or root beer, down the cellar. "It will be a hot day tomorrow and the cool drink will make a real fine," went on Mr. Longears.

"Oh! I can't wait right away?" asked Tolly.

"No, we must wait over night for the soda to foam up and make the pop rise and foam," said Nurse Jane.

So the little rabbit children, forty-seven of them, or more, went to bed a dream of how wonderful the soda would taste the next day. The soda sat there, which meant hot weather on the morrow.

But in the middle of the night something happened. Uncle Wiggily, his wife, Nurse Jane and all the forty-seven little bunnies were awakened by hearing hanging, cracking sounds in the cellar.

"Oh! Daddicums," cried Holly. "Somebody is taking our soda pop!"

"I'll see about that!" shouted Mr.

Longears.

A Plan As Popular As the House Behind It

What The Ten Pay Plan Is and What It IS NOT

It is a dignified plan by which men of good standing with a small amount of cash and a reputable employment record may buy better clothes. . . An initial payment of $10. . . The balance in ten weekly payments of equal amounts. The plan does not disturb the long established thirty day charge service. . . But is simply a more convenient form of charge service extended to those who find it preferable.

Society Brand Clothes

And other good makes which have contributed to this store's position of leadership for years are

A charge service of convenience... for men of good standing... who know and appreciate the real pleasure and economy of clothing of the better kind... that's the Ten Pay Plan as it is employed at this store for the deserving men who want it.
